Data from the Mann et al. 2016 fire probability map, which estimates fire counts for 2001-2050 using a future climate projection (GFDL scenario A2; slightly drier by 2100) and a business as usual housing scenario.